Funeral of the Late W. H. Vanderbilt.

THE CEREMONIES AT THE TOMB.

Sorrowing Friends Follow the Remains of the Millionaire to Their Last Resting Place.

(Special to the Herald by Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, December 11.—The last rites over the body of Wm. Vanderbilt began this morning, when the body of the deceased was removed from the ice box to the coffin, which was then taken to the home on the east side of the house. As the hour appointed for beginning the services approached carriage after carriage drove up to the entrance and left their occupants. Each carriage bore a coachman and footman and some were mounted with livings. Shortly after 9 o'clock the immediate family looked for the last time upon the face of the deceased. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Cooke. They were simple and touching, consisting of prayer and a few words of remembrance and consolation. The coffin was then closed and Mrs. Vanderbilt retired to her apartments, which she has occupied since the death of Mr. Vanderbilt. The coffin was raised upon the shoulders of the bearers and preceded by the clergyman and pall-bearers, was borne down the broad staircase, through the corridors and the open doors, never more to re-enter.

At 9:30 the funeral cortege started for the church. There were no crowds on the streets through which it passed, and the police along the line almost outnumbered the eight-ages. At a quarter past ten the doors of St. Bartholomew Church were opened and the bearers bearing their shoulders the coffin, passed down the center aisle. Preceding it a coffin, walked the pall-bearers, wearing white robes. The deep tones of the organ were heard as the procession moved down the nave of the church. Rev. Dr. Samuel Cooke accompanied by an assistant, walked in advance of the solemn procession and read the well-known lines from the burial service, "I am the resurrection and the life," etc. Following the coffin walked the members of the Vanderbilt family, headed by Cornelius Vanderbilt and his wife. When the music of the funeral march was ended the choir sang, "Lord, let me know my God to Thee." After this simple service the choir united in singing "Nearer, my God to Thee." At eleven minutes to eleven when the doors of the church again swung backward and the solemn procession returned to the street, whence it proceeded to the cemetery. No one was admitted except friends of the family and representatives of commercial business or the press. As a result there were less than 100 ladies admitted to listen to the service. The newsmen among business men were the Presidents and Heads of Departments of all roads with which Mr. Vanderbilt had been connected.

The ferryboat Southfield of the Staten Island line was waiting at the foot of West Forty-second street. When the funeral cortege arrived about fifty carriages with their occupants were driven to the boat, but it was found impossible to accommodate all and many were unavoidably left behind. At 11:40 A. M. the Southfield, which bore the remains of the old Commodore to Staten Island, left her wharf and started on her trip down the bay. The passage was devoid of incident. Nearly all the members of the Vanderbilt family remained on the ferryboat, which was crowded with people. The boat landed at Clifton, Staten Island, at 12:25 P. M., and the procession again formed and started toward New Dorp, several miles away. Hundreds of people came from all parts of the island to see the funeral, and on nearly all hotels and prominent buildings flags were suspended at half-mast.

It was after 1 o'clock when the tolling of the bell upon the Moravian church in New Dorp spoke the end of the weeping ceremony of the first few carriages. When the cemetery was reached the hearse was drawn to a space in front of the temporary receiving vault and the casket was removed and placed immediately in front of the door of the vault. The pall-bearers divided into two ranks on either side of the coffin, the relatives stood beside the pall-bearers on the southern side and the spectators stood uncovered while Rev. Wm. H. Vogler, pastor of Moravian church, uttered an eloquent prayer, after which Rev. Dr. Cooke, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, recited an Episcopal service for the dead. The casket was then carried into the receiving vault, where it was hermetically sealed in the presence of the four sons of the deceased. The mourners again took their places in carriages and were driven back to the landing. Robert Finkert and a force of his men were left in charge of the vault until the mausoleum is finished.

VANDERBILT'S WILL.
NEW YORK, December 11.—The Times Washington special says: A friend of Vanderbilt's said here last night that soon after Vanderbilt's return from Europe last summer he met him, when the millionaire said: "Do you know I changed my will yesterday?" Of course his friend did not know. Well, I had decided to divide my property among my boys and had done so, but some of them who had about $5,000,000 which they thought they could not lose, of put it in the hands of a trustee and I had nearly $20,000,000 to get them out of the estate. Since I have been abroad, too, I have obtained some impressions in favor of keeping the bulk of my property intact, so I have made changes in my will to carry out that idea. The gentleman who relates this is so prominent in the law world as a friend of Vanderbilt that his truth is not doubted by those who heard it related. Vanderbilt's will was read after the funeral in the presence of the family, but it was decided that the contents should not be made public until after the document had gone to the Surrogate's office. The will provided for the children generally, but it was not made public until the evening as the contents, but no trustworthy details could be obtained.

MEXICAN MATTERS.
NEW YORK, December 11.—A telegram received today from President Diaz of Mexico by the president of the Transatlantic Ship Railway Company announces the passage yesterday by the Mexican Congress of the amended concessions to the company. These amendments add to the previous land grant 1,700,000 acres, the whole land concession being equal to the land area of New Jersey. Coaling stations are permitted at other ports of the railway to which coal from the United States or any other foreign nation is co-terminous with Mexico and guaranteeing the interest on the bonds of the railway company to be admitted, to the station of coal from other countries. This will give a new market to United States coal if the United States Congress joins with Mexico in the guarantee on which the bonds to build the ship railway are to be based. Mexico guarantees the payment of $1,250,000 a year for fifteen years, provided this or some European nation will guarantee $2,500,000 more for the same period. The time for completing the road has been extended to 1894.

Arrested for Forgery.
SAN FRANCISCO, December 11.—Calvin Pratt, ex-Chief Engineer of the South Park and Utah Pacific Railroad, wanted for forgery in New York, Denver and San Francisco for the amount of twenty thousand dollars, has been arrested at Honolulu. He will be returned to San Francisco for trial.

FOR LOVE.

A Young Lady Embraces the Jewish Faith.

OMAHA, December 11.—Mary Nevill, a handsome girl, aged 21, well known in Omaha society, was to-night formally admitted to the Jewish faith. Her parents are Protestants and members of the Episcopal church, and the girl was reared in the tenets of that religion. She is the first conversion from that place to Judaism in Nebraska. Miss Nevill professes to be thoroughly conversant with the tenets of the faith, and was received at the Jewish Synagogue with elaborate ceremonies, consisting of purification in the Jewish doctrine, a confession and prayer by the priests and the changing of her first name to Leah. No pressure had been brought to influence her on the part of the Jewish congregation, but it is hinted that her father had originated the idea to marry a prominent young Hebrew.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

WASHINGTON, December 11.—At 11 o'clock to-day Sherman resigned the position as Chairman of the Caucus and Edmunds was elected to that place. This action was due to the fact that no Senator had ever been Chairman of the Caucus and presiding officer of the Senate at the same time, and Sherman felt it incumbent on him not to depart from the line of precedent.

THE VICTORS AND THE SPOILS.

Fight for Chief.

The Republican caucus is at white heat over the office in the gift of the Caucus. There are as many aspirants as there are Concomitantes, and politicians start up from every bush you approach—that is every nook of the court house, and every street corner. The victims are button-holed at all points. This is hardly to be wondered at. It is many years since the party has been in power here. This is the first year they have had any part of their way, and next year they propose to have it all. One of the "straight goods" of the party said to a Hawk reporter yesterday: "We are going to have some civil service reform. We propose to fill every place with a Republican. Even to the chain gang captain, all must be sent on the good."

GALLOP COAST.
